Indo-China

I am enjoying my work very much. The Lord is wonderfully blessing the ministry of our missionaries and native workers in Indo-China. There is much more of open-heartedness to hear the Word of God in this country than in India; and though the converts have sometimes to suffer persecution, yet on the whole—because there is nothing of the caste system here—the hindrances to the natives accepting the Gospel are not anything as great as in India.

Chaudoc, Cambodia

Chaudoc is on the border of Cambodai. The object of opening this station was partly to reach the many Cambodians around Chaudoc with the Gospel message. This object has already begun to be realized. It was our great joy to witness the baptism of the first fruits from Cambodia buried with Christ at the Chaudoc station. These four souls, together with two also who have been received into the church at Pnom-penh, the capital of Cambodia, are the beginning of the Church of Christ among the Cambodians.

Saigon, Indo-China

One very encouraging and important feature of this work must not be omitted. The Holy Spirit with a view, no doubt, to the rapid spreading of the Gospel message throughout this land by the Annamese themselves, is calling many young men on all our stations to a knowledge of the Lord Jesus. Not only so, but many of these young men are distinctly feeling the clear call of God in their souls to "Go" into the work of the Master. As I write these lines, a score or more young men are about to sail from this southern port of Saigon to Tourane, to attend our Bible School and prepare for the work of the Lord in French Indo-China. Thank God, one of these young men is a Cambodian. He and his wife have been saved and are hungry for the Word of God, that, being fed and strengthened themselves, they may be able to evangelize their own people. It is a very wonderful and significant thing that there are now more than forty young men in course of preparation as students of our Bible School, who, when they have completed their three-year course, will be strong pillars of the Church of Christ in Indo-China.
